The Benefits of Working with a Late Tax Filing Attorney USA Before the IRS Takes Action

Princeton, NJ - Missing a tax filing deadline rarely feels like an emergency in the moment. Life gets busy, records go missing, or a taxpayer simply assumes they'll catch up next year. But every year that passes without a field return gives the IRS more room to act, and by the time notices start arriving, the situation has often grown far more complicated than it needed to be. This is why working with a late tax filing attorney USA early, rather than waiting for a collection notice, can make a significant difference in the outcome.

Verni Tax Law, led by Attorney Anthony N. Verni, works with individuals and businesses across the country who have fallen behind on their filings, sometimes by one year, sometimes by ten. As both an attorney and CPA with an MBA, Verni brings a combined legal and accounting perspective that shapes how each case is reviewed and resolved.

What Happens When Returns Go Unfiled

An unfiled return rarely stays a quiet problem for long. The IRS can prepare a Substitute for Return on a taxpayer's behalf, calculated without deductions or credits, which usually results in a balance far higher than what the person actually owes. From there, penalties and interest continue to build, refunds may be held, and in more serious cases, wage garnishment or a federal tax lien can follow. A missed year can also prompt the IRS to take a closer look at prior filings, turning a single oversight into a broader review.

This is where IRS unfiled tax return help becomes valuable. Rather than waiting to see how far the IRS will take enforcement, a proactive attorney reviews financial records, IRS notices, and prior filings together, identifying issues before they escalate into audits, levies, or referrals for criminal investigation.

Bringing Filings Current without Guesswork

Verni Tax Law approaches these cases as a tax return compliance attorney would: methodically, and with attention to how each filed return affects the ones around it. For clients with several

Years of missing returns, the goal is not just to file paperwork, but to do so in a way that withstands IRS review and positions the client for the best available relief option, whether that's an Offer in Compromise, an installment agreement, or penalty abatement under the Fresh Start Initiative.

For clients with foreign accounts or income, the firm's role as a filing unfiled tax returns attorney often overlaps with FBAR and FATCA compliance work, since these issues frequently surface together. Coordinating both at once helps avoid inconsistencies that could otherwise draw additional scrutiny.

A Personal, Case-by-Case Approach

What sets Verni Tax Law apart is direct attorney involvement in every case. Clients working with this unfiled tax returns lawyer deal with Anthony N. Verni personally from the first consultation through resolution, rather than being passed between staff members. Consultations are available by phone, secure video conference, or in person at the firm's Princeton, New Jersey and Fort Lauderdale, Florida offices, with flexible scheduling for clients living abroad.

Acting Before the IRS Does

The IRS does not need a taxpayer to reach out first. Once enforcement begins, options tend to narrow. Addressing unfiled returns before that happens, with proper guidance, gives taxpayers a much stronger position to negotiate from.

Verni Tax Law offers confidential consultations for individuals and businesses dealing with unfiled tax returns and related IRS compliance matters. More information is available at vernitaxlaw.com or by calling (561) 531-8809.
